MOUNTAINEERS

Community is the foundation of The Mountaineers.

Our impact wouldn't be possible without the commitment, generosity, passion, and expertise of people like you.

Our Fiscal Year 2024 Impact Report (October 2023–September 2024) is a celebration of the many ways our community advances The Mountaineers mission. We're deeply grateful that our members, volunteers, and donors choose to support our work, embodied in our strategic plan, Adventure with Purpose. This plan highlights our three strategic priorities – commitments to:

LEAD innovation in outdoor education, so that anyone inspired to learn outdoor skills has that opportunity with The Mountaineers;

ENGAGE a vibrant community of outdoor enthusiasts, so every individual can find inspiration and belonging in the outdoors;

ADVOCATE on behalf of the natural world, to make a meaningful, enduring impact in protecting our planet and the outdoor experience.

We live these commitments every day. They're rooted in the values, hard work, and skills of volunteer leaders and staff who deliver our mission-driven programs and publications. Most of our programs are volunteer-led, and the dedication of our volunteers is one of the most inspiring things to read about in this report. Thanks to the generous financial support of donors like you, we are able to achieve the reach and impact highlighted in the following pages.

Making our courses accessible to more people is a great example of how volunteerism and philanthropy work together to create positive impact. Our volunteer-led courses provide some of the best outdoor education opportunities on the planet because of the skill, experience, and commitment of our leaders. And because we offer scholarships for expenses such as membership dues and course fees, we give people the opportunity to have transformative outdoor experiences that they otherwise wouldn't.

We hope you will be inspired by the impact stories in the pages that follow. Thank you for being part of The Mountaineers community and our success in the past year!

With gratitude,

PROGRAMS

The Mountaineers offers hundreds of courses and activities each year to connect people to each other and the natural world. We offer opportunities to learn skills, meet new people, build lifelong friendships, and enjoy the outdoors. Our programs inspire self-discovery and conservation through outdoor experiences.

I'm proud to reflect on 2024 as a year where both volunteer and staff created a more welcoming and inclusive Mountaineers community that offers members a sense of belonging.

The success of our introductory programs like GoWalk and GoHike, courses designed to create an empowering community for new hikers and urban walkers, underscores our commitment to accessible outdoor experiences. The growth and impact of our affinity courses for women, non-binary individuals, and BIPOC participants offered identity-affirming spaces that value and support individuals in a vibrant learning community. The creation of a new activity type, "relaxed paced trips," expands opportunities for belonging and welcomes paces that have been historically excluded from outdoor recreation objectives. These programs marked an important step toward greater inclusion, while highlighting the ongoing work needed to create equitable experiences across all of our programs.

Beyond program delivery, our ongoing work to strengthen our sexual harassment and sexual assault prevention

plan, guided by the Sexual Harassment & Sexual Assault Prevention Committee's five-year plan, underscores our unwavering commitment to the safety and well-being of every member. By proactively addressing these critical issues, we reinforce our dedication to a culture of respect, ensuring The Mountaineers continues to grow as a welcoming and inclusive space for all who seek connection with community and the outdoors.

I am grateful for the collective work and efforts in fiscal year 2024 to foster safety, inclusivity, and exceptional educational experiences, and I am optimistic about the future of Mountaineers programs and the continued growth of our welcoming community through our shared commitment to these vital principles.

PLACES

We believe our natural world is meant to be experienced mindfully and respectfully, and that people and nature are inextricably linked.

In pursuing these beliefs, we acknowledge that the lands we cherish are the ancestral lands of the Pacific Northwest Indigenous tribes, who live here and have stewarded these lands and waters as they have since time immemorial. As we pursue our mission, we strive to listen to and amplify Native traditions and values through respectful engagement.

Deepening Engagement With Native History and Culture

In 2024, The Mountaineers and Outdoor Alliance Washington worked with The Whitener Group, a Native-owned tribal consultancy, as we prepared for direct engagement with tribal governments in Washington. Completing The Whitener Group's online tribal engagement training was instrumental in preparing us to build relationships and develop partnerships, and is a valuable resource for anyone wanting to learn about Native history, culture, and tribal governments in Washington state and beyond.

PUBLISHING

Mountaineers Books is the world's leading independent publisher of outdoor, recreation, and conservation books. Our more than 700 books in print educate and inspire outdoor adventurers and build a community of advocates for the natural world.

Our publishing division includes three imprints: Mountaineers Books, Braided River, and Skipstone. Mountaineers Books also distributes titles on behalf of mission-aligned partners, including the American Alpine Club, Appalachian Trail Conservancy, Colorado Mountain Club, and Green Trails Maps.

With the release of the 10th Edition of Mountaineering: The Freedom of the Hills, 2024 was a big year for Mountaineers Books.

Capturing seven decades of collective wisdom and thousands of hours of staff and volunteer work, Freedom is the book that is closest to the heart of the organization – indeed, it is the reason Mountaineers Books exists.

The 10th Edition represents the most comprehensive update since the original “Climbers Notebook” was first transformed into Freedom of the Hills, including contributions from across the organization and review by AMGA professionals. The launch was marked by a celebration on the deck of the Seattle REI Flagship store, followed by hands-on demonstrations at the Seattle Program Center and a branch tour to honor the contributions of members on their home turf.

While that’s setting a high bar, what I am personally most proud of from the past year is the publication of Alpine Rising and Headstrap – two Banff and Boardman Tasker award winning books that tell the stories of Sherpa and Balti climbers in Nepal, Pakistan, and Darjeeling – and the 10th Anniversary reissue of The Adventure Gap, James Edward Mills’s account of the first all-African American expedition to Denali, a predecessor of Philip Henderson’s Full Circle Everest expedition (our 2023 Gala keynote speaker).

The throughline that connects these titles to Freedom of the Hills is, well, freedom. When we talk about freedom to roam, we often think of conservation and access to public lands. But at the core, freedom to roam is about equality. It is no accident the Swedes call it allemansrätten: we all have an equal claim and right to the wonders of the natural world. It is our common ground.

These four books are united by that ideal. Freedom is the toolkit that gives readers the skills and confidence to explore the outdoors; Alpine Rising, Headstrap, and The Adventure Gap present a vision of the outdoors where everyone is welcome and every adventure has merit. They serve the same ends.

None of this should be controversial; these are values that go back to the very founding of The Mountaineers. And yet we are in a moment where even the language of this letter – words like “equality” and “inclusion” – has become politically charged. This makes it all the more important to continue advancing our mission, as with books like Ian’s Ride and All Humans Outside in the current season.

It’s what we do.

Until next year,

Mountaineers Books Publisher
Ridgeline

In 2024, we shipped books directly from our distribution center to readers in all fifty states (plus Puerto Rico and Washington, D.C.), to Armed Forces in Europe and Asia, to 7 Canadian Provinces, 5 Australian Territories, and 16 other countries from India to New Zealand.

“Every new edition of Freedom carries not only the wisdom of today’s contributors but the generations of expertise that has made this title the go-to mountaineering reference for over 60 years. I’m proud to be a part of this history and to know first-hand how it takes a village to create a book like Freedom.”

—Eric Linxweiler, 23-year member, Peak Society, volunteer editor of Freedom of the Hills, 10th Edition

Celebrating the 10th Edition of Freedom of the Hills

What began as handwritten climbing tips from early volunteers, Freedom of the Hills evolved into the most significant mountaineering guidebook ever published. Since its 1960 debut, over 800,000 copies have been sold and translated into 12 languages, showcasing Mountaineers Books profound impact on outdoor education. The 10th edition, released last fall, continued the volunteer-contributor spirit and was celebrated at launch events at REI and the Seattle Program Center.

Embracing Anti-Racism Principles in the Outdoors Through Publishing

Mountaineers Books is committed to publishing stories and resources that foster a deeper connection to the outdoors for people from all walks of life. The 10th Anniversary edition of The Adventure Gap provides a thought-provoking reflection on what has evolved in and around the outdoor community since the historic first all-Black Denali summit attempt, as well as updated guidance on creating a truly inclusive outdoor environment.

LEAD

innovation in outdoor education

As a child, I had a lot of adverse experiences exploring the outdoors.

I was taught that outdoor spaces were not for people with my skin-tone, religious beliefs, and dietary traditions. It wasn't until I found an informal BIPOC (Black, Indigenous, People of Color) group of hikers and climbers in my early 20s that I felt finally able to grow my love for getting out into nature. Since moving to Seattle, I've fostered my outdoor pursuits through The Mountaineers – first through backpacking, then climbing and cross-country skiing, before finally finding my true passion: canyoning.

The Mountaineers has historically prioritized physical safety in our learning programs, which is an essential foundation for learning outdoor sports. However, research has increasingly shown that emotional and psychological safety are also a key component of the learning process.

As I experienced in my early 20s, affinity groups provide emotionally and psychologically safe communities where folks can learn, connect, and grow together. This is why I feel incredibly privileged and thankful to have helped instruct for the BIPOC cohort of Basic Canyoning in the summer of 2024 – a course built by Madeline Hwang (canyoning leader and lead instructor,) and Crystal Hudelson (local climbing guide of color, and strong advocate for building outdoor access). Through their efforts, and a host of supportive BIPOC instructors, we were able to welcome an excellent group of canyoneers to our community, several of whom specifically credited our cohort as essential for their learning needs.

I'm thrilled that many committees within The Mountaineers are beginning to take steps toward building affinity learning spaces and trips: In 2024, The Mountaineers supported its first Women's Alpine Scrambling course, and continued to provide all-women cohorts for classes like Winter Mountaineering and Advanced Crevasse Rescue. During the year, Mountaineers leaders in BIPOC, women, and non-binary affinity groups also encouraged learning and community building by hosting social gatherings for members to share stories and skills among like-minded recreationists.

Instruction is more effective when people feel a sense of safety and belonging, and these spaces are essential to building bridges and increasing access to the outdoors for historically excluded and underserved communities. I am excited to see this as a growth area within Mountaineers leadership, and look forward to our continued efforts to build a more diverse and inclusive outdoor community.

The Outdoor Leader

While the release of Freedom 10 was the marquee event of 2024, there is no title that better reflects Mountaineers leadership in outdoor education than The Outdoor Leader by Jeannette Stawski. As former executive director of the Association of Outdoor Recreation and Education, Stawski presents a roadmap for educators, guides, and volunteers to build their leadership skills, drawing from first-hand accounts and guidance from leaders and professionals across a range of outdoor organizations. In an excellent example of crossover between publications and educational programming, Stawski was also the keynote speaker at both the North and South Sound Leadership Conferences in winter 2024 and spring 2025.

ENGAGE

a vibrant community of outdoor enthusiasts

The Mountaineers is an extraordinary community of givers who selflessly and passionately support our mission to connect people to the natural world and each other.

As an 18-year Mountaineers member, donor, and volunteer, I am continuously blown away by our community's commitment to giving back and paying it forward – opening doors to belonging, exploration, personal development, and well-being in our treasured outdoor spaces. 2024 showcased just how significant our impact can be when a spirit of generosity prevails.

Our culture of philanthropy encompasses myriad forms of giving back, and these acts of giving create a synergy that powers The Mountaineers toward a more engaged and impactful community. As we built on 2023 successes with youth programs, course capacity, and facilities, the intertwining of volunteerism and fundraising became even stronger in 2024.

Volunteerism has been at the heart of The Mountaineers since its inception. Dedicated volunteers set the tone for our community by cultivating a sense of belonging and shared purpose among members of all ages, experience levels, and backgrounds. Last year, 3,573 volunteers spent 182,654 hours bringing the joy of the outdoors to thousands of members in countless ways, including leading trips, teaching courses, and supporting events. And our robust Leadership Development program empowered hundreds of adults and youth who learned how to facilitate and improve future volunteer, leader, and advocacy opportunities.

Engaging a vibrant community of volunteers is made possible through our supportive community of donors. The funds raised through philanthropic efforts allow us to introduce more people to the outdoors, grow our youth programs, bolster volunteer leadership development, invest in infrastructure to improve programming, increase conservation and advocacy education, allow sustainable choices for books production, and more. Last year 2,532 members (including more than 1,500 first-time donors) gave more than $1.08 million, while corporate sponsors and foundations invested $554,098. These financial gifts enabled us to take mission-critical initiatives well beyond what we could achieve with revenue from programs alone, and helped us keep prices reasonable for membership, activities, camps, lodges, and books.

Philanthropic highlights in 2024 include $106,719 in scholarships awarded through the donor-funded Mountaineers Access Program (MAP) to ensure everyone has access to Mountaineers activities. In addition, the Peak Society Giving Circle (annual donations of $1,000+) reached record membership heights, while the new Ridgeline Giving Circle (annual donations of $500+) energized a new group of donors.

The beauty of our growing culture of philanthropy is the interplay between volunteering and donating: there are so many ways to support our remarkable community. Fundamentally, we are all united around a love of the outdoors no matter how we give back or pay it forward. What vibrant future lies ahead when the spirit of generosity illuminates our path!

Mountaineers publications follow two paths to engage a community of outdoor enthusiasts. First, our best-in-class educational books are clear and accessible guides that engage the novice on their journey from first-time hiker to seasoned recreationist. Second, our catalog of narratives and histories seek to reflect all adventurers and provide role models for readers of any background and ability. The Adventure Gap uses the first all-African American expedition to Denali to examine this need for diverse outdoor stories. Similarly, Alpine Rising and Headstrap spotlight the achievements of Sherpa and Balti climbers who've been sidelined in accounts of Western expeditions.

A Community Engaged in Giving Back

Our members engage in myriad ways, volunteering time to instruct courses, contributing talent to improve programs, sharing stories to cultivate community, donating dollars to sustain operations, and more. # ADVOCATE on behalf of the natural world

I was 17 years old when I went on my first hike.

It was miserable, painful, and downright humbling. A heavy pack, an environment of unknowns, and 43 miles to go, I thought what any naive teenager would: why am I here?

By the end of that hike, I felt completely rebuilt by the mountains. Born and raised in the midwest, my version of going outdoors meant vacationing to Florida and resort skiing. I had always loved the outdoors – I just didn't know the outdoors was an option for me. But during this hike, I discovered the outdoors was something I could belong to... and something I wanted to give back to.

Seven years later, I have the immense privilege of empowering youth to confidently venture outside with the knowledge, skillset, and support to become outdoor enthusiasts and advocates themselves. Not all kids grow up with access to the outdoors, and The Mountaineers is working to change that. Our youth programs, serving ages 2-18, create as much opportunity as possible for youth to foster their individual connection to nature so that they can experience firsthand the transformative power of the natural world and feel inspired to protect it. Participants learn not only how to recreate safely through navigation, first aid, and technical skill building, but how to recreate responsibly through a curriculum that includes stewardship opportunities, mindful recreation and land acknowledgment seminars, Leave No Trace training, and more.

Childhood outdoor experiences are foundational in developing a long lasting recreation ethic that informs our younger members well into the future as they grow to become the next generation of fierce advocates for our natural world. Our youth team is dedicated to ensuring that a love for – and dedication to protect – our cherished experiences, places, and people lives on for generations more.

Big River

Mountaineers Books approaches advocacy at several levels. Books in our Braided River imprint serve as a direct call to action to advocate for and protect ecosystems facing immediate threats. In 2024, we published Big River by David Moskowitz, exploring the Columbia River watershed and salmon management. These books foreground advocacy and inspire action to protect our natural places. At an everyday level, we seek to weave appreciation of natural history and best practices for low impact recreation throughout every book we publish.

In the past year while advancing our mission, The Mountaineers also paused to celebrate the remarkable lives and enduring contributions of valued members who have now gone off belay. We especially honor the legacies of Jeff Bowman, Storm Yanicks, Lou Whittaker, and Governor Daniel J. Evans, whose passion for adventure and dedication to our community left an indelible mark. We remember them with profound respect and celebrate the impact they had on our organization and the wider world.
