

October 22, 2025

The Honorable Bob Ferguson
Office of the Governor
PO Box 40002
Olympia, WA 98504

RE: Full funding for the Wildfire Response, Forest Restoration & Community Resilience Account

Dear Governor Ferguson,

Wildfire seasons are growing longer and more intense, with impacts reaching communities across the state. We are also seeing more fires than ever on the wetter west side of the state. As we write, wildfires are actively burning from Bear Gulch on the Olympic Peninsula to Labor Mountain across Blewett Pass.

At the same time, the cost of fighting wildfires is rising rapidly. The National Interagency Fire Center (NIFC) reports that the average annual cost of suppression from 2019-2023 was over $2.9 billion — more than double the cost between 2009-2013.

To protect Washingtonians, we urge you to fully fund the Wildfire Response, Forest Restoration & Community Resilience Account — fulfilling the commitment made with the passage of House Bill 1168 in 2021 to invest $125 million each biennium over eight years in critical wildfire resilience efforts.

Since 2021 the Account has facilitated meaningful progress, delivering on the commitment made to communities across the state:

- Wildfire Response: More firefighters are now on the ground with increased support from additional dozers, excavators, and air assets — strategically pre-positioned to reduce reliance on federal aid. Improved early wildfire detection systems enable faster response. These coordinated efforts ensure our firefighters can act quickly to keep wildfires from becoming catastrophic. Thanks in part to HB 1168, the number of acres burned has dropped dramatically: from 800,000 in 2020 to 680,000 in 2021, and under 200,000 in both 2022 and 2023. In 2024, we saw an increase to just over 300,000 acres burned — still well below pre-HB 1168 levels.
- Forest Restoration: Nearly 90,000 acres have received treatment from thinning and prescribed fire to boost resilience and better buffer communities across wildfire-prone landscapes. This work builds on broader restoration efforts, collectively impacting over half a million acres in eastern Washington. When the 20-Year Forest Health Strategic Plan was adopted in 2014, 2.8 million acres were identified as critically in need of restoration — then estimated to take 53 years to treat at the current pace. Thanks to these funds, we are accelerating progress toward that goal.

- Community Resilience: Over 300 communities are now better prepared for wildfires, with more than 1,000 trained local leaders and hundreds of homes implementing fire-resistant upgrades, expert risk assessments, and vegetation clearing to reduce ignition.

These investments are helping make communities safer — saving homes and likely lives. However, the work has only just begun. We cannot be lulled into a false sense of security because investments so far have reduced the scale, intensity, and impact of recent wildfire seasons in Washington.

Transforming our state's relationship with wildfire requires more than that ramp-up of state agency efforts — local investments are essential. Community grants, a cornerstone of HB 1168, empower local communities to lead preparedness efforts, reduce fuel loads in the wildland-urban interface, and restore fire's natural role. Without full funding of HB 1168, these community-driven solutions will stall.

The $60 million cut made in the '25-27 biennial budget will reverse hard-won progress by stalling agency efforts and eliminating funding for community grants. We cannot afford to lose momentum when the stakes have never been higher.

Look to Oregon for our potential costly future if the State does not renew its commitment in the '26 supplemental budget: Last year, Oregon was forced into a special Legislative Session to approve an additional $218 million to pay wildfire response costs from the previous fire season.

We also face new challenges with a reorganization of federal fire programs underway, including proposals to consolidate wildland fire programs at the Departments of the Interior and Agriculture. Both Departments are also experiencing significant workforce reductions that could impact their wildfire and forest management programs. To date the U.S. Forest Service has lost roughly 5,000 through the Deferred Resignation Program (DRP), and the Department of Interior lost an additional 7,500 through DRP. It is unclear how many of these staff had primary or secondary fire responsibilities. Given this uncertainty, it is more important than ever for Washington to strengthen its own wildfire response, invest in forest management, and ensure communities are prepared.

The undersigned organizations — representing Tribal governments, local governments, community organizations, and the private sector — urge you to include the remaining $60 million transfer in the 2026 supplemental budget to sustain proven wildfire resilience investments across Washington. As Commissioner of Public Lands Upthegrove emphasized in his September 15 letter, highlighting this account transfer as a top priority for his agency: “Without these funds, Washington could see an increased number of fires that are going to be larger and cost the taxpayers more money.” These investments not only pay for themselves down the line, but they are essential to protecting lives, communities, and landscapes across the Evergreen State.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Tribal Nations

Chairman Jarred-Michael Erickson
Confederated Tribes of the Colville
Reservation

Ray Entz
Kalispel Tribe of Indians
Natural Resources Department

Councilmember Lisa Wilson
Lummi Indian Business Council

Chairman Shannon Wheeler
Nez Perce Tribe

Chairman Thomas Wooten
Samish Indian Nation

Chairman Eric White
Stillaguamish Tribe of Indians

Local Governments

Mayor Jeff Adams
City of Roslyn

Aaron Champagne
City of Spokane Valley Parks and Recreation

Elizabeth Chamberlain
City of Walla Walla

Chair Laura Osiadacz
Kittitas County Board of Commissioners

Brett Anderson
Spokane Valley Fire Department

Steve Brooks
Washington Fire Chiefs

Derek Young
Washington State Association of Counties

Conservation Districts

Ryan Williams
Cascadia Conservation District

Eli Loftis
Okanogan Conservation District

Mike Nordin
Pacific Conservation District

Heather Wendt
Washington Association of Conservation
Districts

Environmental Organizations

Sarah Dyrda
American Rivers

Trina Bayard
Audubon Washington

Betsy Rutledge
Columbia Land Trust

Environmental Organizations Cont.

Nadine Nadow

Conservation Northwest

Eddie Espinosa

Evergreen Mountain Bike Alliance

Sheah Ellis

Fire Adapted Methow

Michelle Connor

Forterra NW

Ryen Helzer

Jefferson Land Trust

Adam Gebauer

The Lands Council

Betsy Robblee

The Mountaineers

Jay McLaughlin

Mt. Adams Resource Stewards

David B. Mendoza

The Nature Conservancy

Mike Nordin

Pacific Conservation District

Janene Ritchie

Pinchot Partners

Kaia Hayes

RE Sources

Daniel Whelan

Sustainable Northwest

Nick Jeffries

Spokane County Wildfire Mitigation

Coalition

Mitsu Iwasaki

The Trust for Public Land

Vanessa Kritzer

Washington Association of Land Trusts

Christina Wong

Washington Conservation Action

Katie Fields

Washington Prescribed Fire Council

Tony Walter Craven

Washington Resource Conservation and Development Council

Megan Birzell

The Wilderness Society

Community Organizations

Guillermo Rogel

Front and Centered

Jake Garcia

Latino Community Fund of Washington
State

Kate Lunceford

League of Women Voters of Washington

Lorah Super

Methow Valley Citizens Council

Justin Averre

Washington Backcountry Hunters &
Anglers

Businesses

Travis Joseph
American Forest Resource Council

Chris Martin
Blue Pine Fuels

Hannah Jones
Boots on the Ground Forest Services, LLC

Jason Callahan
Green Diamond Resource Company

Joshua Berkowitz
Two Arrows Consultancy

Peter Ambler
Pano AI

Paul Petersen
United Aerial Firefighters Association

Russ Vaagen
Vaagen Timbers

Chelsea Hajny
Washington Cattlemen's Association

Rosella Mosby
Washington Farm Bureau

Jason Spadaro
Washington Forest Protection Association

Utilities

Matt Miller
Puget Sound Energy

Josie Cummings
Avista Corp

Kelli Scott
Chelan PUD

Labor

Sam Tinsley
Washington Public Employees
Association (WPEA)

CC:

Shane Esquibel
Jaime Martin
Debbie Driver
K.D. Chapman-See
Kenneth Martin
Owen Rowe
Matthew Hunter
Lisa Borkowski